Thinking Out Loud

By H. M. L.

Governor Olson's decision to call a special election for the ham and egg proposal is probably wise. It may cost California tax payers a million dollars, as reported, though we have no authority to quote as regards that figure. But it will probably save thousands of impecunious old people hundreds of thousands if not millions in contributions to a "lost cause." This reasoning may not be good, because, even if the ham and egg dream is rudely shattered by a second overwhelming defeat at the polls, another scheme fully as impractical and visionary, will undoubtedly take its place. Our grandparents used to remark: "There is no fool like an old fool." The bright young men who live by cozening needy old folks, will no doubt think of a new paradise to promote on a state-wide scale, and continue to live, as they now do, by their wits.

The Governor's speech reciting the reasons that moved him to consent to hold a special election, reveals the well known political pose of balancing. He "sympathizes with the objectives" of the ham and eggers, but for the benefit of the huge majority that once voted it down, he is careful not to endorse the proposal.

Having been elected largely because of the balance of power which the ham and egg schemers held in the last election, the Governor has really treated them coldly, despite the fact that he has promised to hand over a million of tax payers' money or whatever it costs, for an election. Before the defeat of last November the Governor's "sympathy" was far stronger than it is now, yet he cannot bring himself to repudiate the whole kit and bilin', for the sucker list compiled of "elder citizens" who contribute to this simple-silly "cause" may prove useful to him another time.

To address a lot of ham and egg proponents, full of pep and enthusiasm for the Governor personally and for all his own especial remedies for social and economic ills, must have warmed the governor's heart. For anyone will concede that he has had hard sledding since he first entered on his duties.

The state legislature carefully scrutinizes all the Olson plans, panaceas, pet appointments, and completely ignores the platform, on which he was elected and on which he still tries to stand. But one by one the planks have been shortened, heaved over, or slashed into kindling wood ,and not much is now left of it. In fact the legislature is paying just as little attention to the Olson platform as his greater prototype in the White House paid to his, once he was elected. The reason for this anomoly is probably that Olson did write most of his platform in the name of the Democratic party, while Roosevelt did not write the Democratic platform on which he was elected.

The trouble with platforms, it may be admitted, is that usually they eminate from many minds; compromises are made that do not squarely meet the issues. The result is that even those who build platforms do not expect to see them used as a guide to legislative or administrative action. Sometimes they enunciate a policy that can be followed by state or nation, but too often they evade or straddle the vital issue, just as Governor Olson did in his address to the deluded ham and egg gathering in Sacramento. Written by politicians, platforms are bound to reflect political expediency rather than set up high and sound standard that a forthright people can approve.

Olson's constant appeal to the platform he was elected on, while the legislature puts his budget through the wringer, is a bit pathetic. Apparently his platform fooled him and no one else. Were it not for his reminders not one man in one thousand could today tell what was in his platform. These documents are, after all, nothing but fly paper covered with honey. Once they have caught their flies, they are forgotten.

C.I.O. BILL MEETS DEFEAT IN STATE LEGISLATURE

A bill which would have prevented Nevada County as well as any other county or city from passing an anti-picketing ordinance was defeated in the assembly on Monday by a vote of 38 to 33. The bill AB 105 which was introduced by Assemblyman Rosenthal of Los Angeles had the support of both the CIO and the AF of L groups and if passed would have opened Nevada County to all outside labor racketeers inasmuch as even a sheriff under the proposed law could not interfere with so-called peaceful picketing.

Assemblyman Thurman of this district was one of four assemblymen who opposed the bill on the floor. The local representative told his fellow legislators of the labor troubles experienced by Nevada County and of the desire of the people of that county in having the power of home rule, to pass what ordinances they thought necessary for their own protection against outside labor radicals and racketeeers. He also stated that the people of Nevada County do not want any Tom Mooney or Harry Bridges interfering with their affairs.

Following the defeat of the bill, the author moved for reconsideration hoping that later in the week he may receive the necessary 41 votes to reconsider the passage of the bill.

Assemblyman Rosenthal endeavored to have the bill reconsidered on Wednesday but was unable to secure the necessary 41 votes. Assemblyman Thurman was the only legislator to oppose Rosenthal in the debate and he again cited the case of Nevada county and the desire of the people of this county to govern their own affairs. The vote was: For reconsideration 35. Against reconsideration 38. The bill is now dead as far as this session of the legislature is concerned.

NEW LIFE GUARD APPOINTED BY CITY COUNCIL

At a special meeting of the Nevada City council, Les Hubbard was appointed life guard at the municipal swimming pool for the approaching summer session. The pool will open about June 10.

Hubbard is experienced in being a life guard; he has been guard at Lage Olympia for several years. His salary will be one hundred dollars per month and he will be entitled to the profits of the candy and soda pop concession.

At the meeting of the council, the members also discussed the project for repair of Gault Bridge. Tony Rore was appointed to fill one of the vacancies on the park commission created by the resignation of Mrs. Charles Elliott and E. V. Cain. The membership of the commission now stands as follows: Thomas O. McCraney, Tony Rore, Mayor Ben Hall and Fred Garrison. The committee will meet this week to prepare a budget for the expenses of the coming year.

The dance is planned on the captivating theme of "Hawaii" and President Bill Joyal of the senior class is executing many novel ideas for the big event. Chairman John Muscardini of the music committee has obtained Cap Carter's dashing jazz orchestra. The theme song will be "Blue Hawaii."

Decoration of the gym is planned to make it look like a picture of real Hawaii. There will be glamorous "Hawaiian" girlies on hand to serve tasty refreshments.

COWLES PATRICIDE BEGINS FOLSOM TERM

Sheriff Carl J. Tobiassen left yesterday for Folsom with Herbert Cowles where the latter will start serving a term for manslaughter. The motion for a new trial was denied by Superior Judge George L. Jones. Cowles was found guilty of killing his father at Indian Flat two months ago.

EDWIN BOOTH BEFRIENDED IN NEVADA CITY

Edwin Booth, famed Sheakespearean actor of the past century, was once a pennIless, hungry black-face banjoist in the California gold fields, a little known true story told by the Old Ranger on "Death Valley Days" Friday, evening, May 26, from 9:30 to 10 p. m. (EDST) and from 8:30 to 9 p. m. PST over the NBC Red Network.

Young Edwin accompanied his famous father, Junius Booth, to California in 1852. The boy sang songs he learned on the Maryland plantation where he was born, and the elder Booth played Shakespearean tragedies to miners who didn't enjoy them, because they lived so close to tragedy themselves. Finally Edwin's father, completely discouraged returned alone to the east, and died on the way. The news was a great shock to Edwin, who had joined a second rate troupe of actors as a banjo player.

He went on, however, until snow stranded the troupe in Nevada City, and they set out on foot through the drifts to find the next town. A kindly woman who ran an inn took the half frozen actors in and let them perform for their first meal in two weeks. Much hard luck dogged Edwin after that that he became known as a hoodoo, and mining camps refused to receive him. Finally leaving California, he began to grow to fame in the east as a Shakespearean actor, and when Edwin Booth returned to the west, it was in triumph. He sought out and remembered, however, the woman who had been so kind to him years before.

This folder it is believed will fill a long felt need as it will give enough historical facts and other data to prove of great value.

H. F. Sofge, secretary of the Chamber of Commerce, and others from Nevada City went to Grass Valley last evening to make arrangements for a booth in the 17th District Agricultural Fair which will be held some time in September. Attorney Frank Finnegan is chairman of this event.

SCOUTS, CUBS, 500 STRONG TO INVADE PAHATSI

Over five hundred scouts and cubs in the Tahoe Area Council this week received their 1939 camp announcements from the scout headquarters, according to L. H. Reynolds, chairman of the camping and activities committee. The brightly colored information bulletin containing details about the camp and its program recalls the development of Camp Pahatsi started just nine years ago.

In 1930 the council president Judge J. B. Landis appointed a campsite committee who were charged with the responsibility of raising special funds for purchase of land, construction of buildings and general development. The members of this committee served enthusiastically and faithfully to the completion of the tremendous undertaking and have continued in scouting for many years. E. T. Robie as chairman was assisted by E. S. Birdsall, Dr. J. G. Mackay and Judge J. B. Landis. In reviewing the great amount of work that this group accomplished, the executive board of the council commented as follows: "For the campsite chairman E. T. Robie, goes special recognition for his never failing encouragement and source of building information as well as his zeal and ability in raising funds with which to carry on the construction and the purchase of materials."

"To E. S. Birdsall goes the palm for conscientious, earnest, and successful efforts in recurng the largest fnancal subscription. The encouragement given by him was largely responsible for the rapid progress made in the construction".

"Dr. J. G. Mackay has guided the financial efforts as well as the health and sanitation construction of the camp and has been of tremendous value in foreseeing things that would save time and money in the future."

"Judge J. B. Landis as council president was a never failing source of excellent counsel and support. To his credit goes much in the securing of volunteer leadership that helped to place the materials in building form."

In one of the first reports of the committee the following tells of the development in the original stages:

"The purchased property, containing a very suitable lake, later named Kilbourn Lake, straddles the new government highway No. 40 and the Southern Pacific main line at an elevation of 6800 feet. The property is held for the council by trustees, J. B. Landis, Judge Raglan Tuttle, E. T. Robie, F. F. Cassidy and Walter Jansen."

Through the efforts of the committee a sum of money was raised and the purchase of the property was negotiated for with the Southern Pacific Company. Enough money was not on hand however for the project until Mrs. George Kilbourn made a substantial contribution that made the purchase possible. In recognition of this generous gesture the lake was named in memory of her husband, George Darus Kilbourn. Today scouts sing around their campfire a popular camp song, "Moonlight on Kilbourn Lake."

The scout executive of the Tahoe Area Council at that time and up to a few months ago, Harris Ricksecker, was a tower of strength on getting things done that were essential to the operation of the camp each year. No time was lost when building could be done and today there are no less than four small buildings serving various purposes in addition to the large lodge that serves as the mess hall, kitchen, office, first aid and the canteen in the summer months, and adds the facilities of sleeping in the winter. This lodge so much a part of the camp and camp life will forever bear the name of the man who spent so much of his personal time and energies in its construction as "Ricksecker Lodge."

During the years between 1930 and the present time the camp has been noted for its year round use and today finds it the most popular of winter camps in scout councils in Northern California. Scouts from Oakland, San Francisco, Alameda, Marin and Petaluma rent it for days at a time as their feature winter snow camp. Records reveal that over 4000 scouts have used Camp Pahatsi since 1930 with more than fifty per cent enjoying the summer months.

Throughout the Tahoe Area Council of Placer, Nevada and Sierra counties have been men who have given unselfishly of their time, money and energies.

GOLD ARMOR OF ABORIGINES AT FINE ARTS BLDG.

Gold figures and armor, found in the ruined cities of an ancient and fabulous South American civilization, which perished with the coming of the Spaniards, forms an unusual exhibit in the Pacific Cultures Section of the Fine and Decorative Arts Building 1939 Golden Gate International Exposition.

The gold, loaned to the $40,00,-000 International Art Exhibition by the National Government of Colombia, consists of a part of the few treasures which were hidden from the greedy Spaniards of the 15th, 16th, and 17th centuries.

The figures and ornaments belonged to the Chibcha and Quimbaya civilizations which flourished in the plateaus of the Andes and the surrounding lowlands in an area now contained within the boundaries of Colombia.

The exhibit, which consists of 25 pieces and includes ceremonial armor, a crown, small figures of men and animals, flasks, masks and ornaments of attire, has been divided into two sections — the Quimbaya and Chibcha.

The gold from the Quimbaya Civilization which flourished in sections of the high Andes Plateau and extended into the lowlands of the River Payez was loaned by the Museo Lecadio M. de Arango de Madellin.

It is a revelation to the modern goldsmith because of the excellence of workmanship, the purity of line, fine metal, and precise smelting, which was done with the lost wax method.

Two thin gold breast plates, decorated in repouse with human figures, and used on warrior's ceremonial dress, form the largest single items in the exhibit.

Both are anchor shaped, and measure approximately 25 inches in length and width.

A gold trumpet, approximately 30 inches in length, and shaped like the modern clarinet, is ornamented with human figures.

Students of music, who have examined the instrument, say that musicians of the Quimbaya Race, used a wooden reed as a mouthpiece and were able to produce clear well rounded notes from it.

The gold from the Chibcha Civilization, which was localized in the central High Plains of Colombia, especially in the environs of Bogata and Tunja, were loaned by the Archeological Museum of the National Government of Colombia.

Good goldsmiths, silversmiths, who specialized more in modeling than in coloring of the metal, hammered their gold.

A typical example of their work as contrasted to the casting methods employed by the Quimbaya, is a diadem with a human face, in repouse, the crown of which is formed with parrot's beaks.

Small gold figures and masks and pins with heads made of filagree, show the great height and skill of these ancient workmen.

Two engraved stones, also in the exhibit loaned by the Archeological Museum, reveal the manner in which the craftsmen of this civilization worked.

These stones, small in size, and delicate in structure, with various little figures carved on them, were used as dies n the repousse process.

ROTARY GIVES TO CO-ORDINATING COUNCIL $50

Directors of the Rotary club yesterday voted a donation of $50 toward the $500 fund which is being raised by the Co-ordinating Council to finance a playground and recreation project in Pioneer's park this summer. The council proposes to raise $500 to defray the expense of this project, which is being instituted in order to check increasing juvenile delinquency.

Laurence O'Rourke, of Colusa gave an interesting talk illustrated by moving pictures of big game hunts in Alberta and British Columbia. He showed scenes of killing carabou, grizzley bear, moose, mule tailed deer, mountain sheep and goats, a black timber wolf and other game. Fish were snared with boot laces in some of the streams. His party packed in to high mountain regions with a train of 21 pack horses, Indian guides, cook and a horse wrangler. Bill Cain, past president, of Rotary was program chairman.

CIVIC PLAN FOR YOUTH PROGRAM RECEIVES AID

The Co-Ordinating Council of Nevada City, a new organization composed of delegates from every organization in Nevada City, has received some very generous donations so far on their campaign for funds for the recreational program for the summer.

The Rotary International Club of Nevada City, donated $25 to the club; High School P. T. A. $5; American Association of University Women $5; and Mayor Benjamin Hall has donated $5 as a personal contribution. The Oustomah Lodge of the I. O. O. F. of Nevada City donated a sum of $5 also to the cause, making the total donation $45. The Womens' Civic Club is planning a food sale to be given a week from Saturday and all proceeds will be turned over to the council.

W. H. Orion, Chief of the department of Physical and Health Education of the State Department of Education when he met with the council last week very heartily endorsed the plans of the group.

Donations may be left at the following places: The Nevada City Nugget office, Dickerman Drug Store, Colley's, The Morning Union office or with the President Mrs. E. T. Bonner or the secretary Fred Garrison. All donations will be greatly appreciated and used for this worthy cause.

MURCHIE MINERS ANNUAL PICNIC NEXT SUNDAY

The annual picnic of the Murchie, Zeibright and Brown's Valley miners will take place next Sunday at the White Cloud CCC camp. There has been a huge ticket sale and the committee of arrangements expect a record breaking attendance.

The sports events for children will begin at 11 o'clock in the morning. Following these will come sports of all types, novelty races and comedy stunts. Free eats and refreshments are included in the price of admission.

Think Again

If, as some of our politicians argue, the steady and rapid extension of government control over individuals and business marks the royal road to security and plenty for the people, the totalitarian states should be veritable marvels of prosperity.

The fact is, as everyone who has studied the subject knows, that totalitarianism tends to promote a lower, not a higher standard of living; a lower, not a higher wage for the worker; a smaller, not a larger return for farmer and manufacturer.

In Russia, articles that Americans of all economic levels consider almost absolute necessities—such as woolen clothing, good leather boot, meat and butter for the table, and adequate furniture—are possessed only by the relatively few, the favored ones of totalitarian "aristocracy." In Italy, wages and the standard of living have been consistently lowered by governmental fiat, and even so common a commodity as wholewheat bread is unavailable to the bulk of workers. In Germany the government-sponsored spread of "ersatz" foods and materials—that is, substitutes for rubber, eggs, butter, bread made of grains, coffee, etc.—testifies mutely to what is happening to the ordinary citizen's standard of living and chance to progress there.

There isn't any mystery as to why this is so. As Harry Curran Wilbur has said: "Government is a non-producer, and has no resources save what it takes from producers, distributors and those servicing both processes." Taxes and competition, under paternalistic governbent, gradually drive the private producer to the wall. The nation's resources are gradually used up and destroyed. The national income drops, while taxes rise and the standard of living goes down.

History, ancient and modern, tells the story. And if you think "it can't happen here," just consider the expansion that has taken place in our own government in recent years, and its competition with private citizens — then think again.—(From the Adams County (Pa.) Independent.)

More Millions For What?

President Roosevelt has asked Congress to appropriate nearly two billion dollars more for the WPA. The request comes at a time when the WPA is being investigated by a special committee of the House of Representatives.

Also, the request was almost simultaneous with several revelations before the investigating committee. One was that the WPA had spent approximately twice as much to construct a building at the New York World's Fair as it would have cost had it been constructed by any other government department or by a private contractor.

Another revelation was that the WPA had spent a considerable sum to publish a voluminous book of nude photographs. And for what purpose? The only explanation offered was that it was for use of artists!

And more important, was the discovery that a Communist organization had been directing the activities of many thousand WPA workers and had been an influence in determining the amount of money needed for WPA programs.

It seems only reasonable now for the public to ask Congress to think twice, and certainly wait until all the facts have been uncovered by the investigating committee, before granting this latest request for additional WPA millions.

Congress should know for just what it is appropriating the money of the taxpayers.—Contributed.

One In Nine

Both seriously and cynically, young people have lately been getting advice from their elders that their best opportunities for employment are in some kind of government work. It has also been said that if present trends continue the time will come when virtually every worker will be on a government payroll.

One of every nine persons employed in the United States now has a government job, either in a federal department or bureau, in state and municipal organizations or in the public school system. The total public payroll, according to figures of the National Municipal League, numbers more than 3,800,000 persons. This does not include those working on relief projects.

The figure is large enough to be alarming, but it is more so because it steadily and persistently increases.—From the Philadelphia Evening Public Ledger.

Just Wonderin'

I wonder what this world would be
If there had never been a tree,
No tree on which an apple hung
To dazzle Eve when time was young,
No tree to shade a garden wall,
Or bend above a waterfall?
This world would be a wretched place
Were there no trees to lend it grace.

I wonder what forms of life—if any—could have existed upon earth had there been no trees. If the human race had evolved and managed to survive; its history would have been radically different; without trees, our pre-historic ancestors would have had no wooden handles for their stone implements—there would have been no Garden of Eden—no apple and no snake. Without trees there would have been no ark, all living things would have perished in the flood and what happened or failed to happen afterward, would have been of no consequence whatever.

However, one can scarcely restrain the imagination. Without trees, there would have been no timber for the building of Solomon's temple, no wooden caravels for Columbus, no Mayflower, no homes in the wilderness, no little red school house, no saw mill at Coloma, no gold rush, no state capitol at Sacramento.

With the realization of our immense debt of gratitude to the trees, let's resolve to protect them by every means within our power, especially from the destroyer of life and beauty, the unleashed fiend of fire.

I wonder if we Californians are being forced to attend strictly to our own affairs; it may be necessary for the president, congress and the G-men, to cut the Gordian knots of federal complexities without our expert advice, while we struggle with our own preblem whose name is, Ham and Eggs.

Ten ham and eggers marching in a line,
One paused to really think—then there were nine.
Nine ham and eggers heard a long debate,
One changed his scrambled mind—then there were eight.
Eight ham and eggers asking from Heaven,
One caught an inner gleam—then there were seven.
Seven ham and eggers doing mental tricks,
One tried arithmetic—then there were six.
Six ham and eggers putting on a drive,
One saw a crash ahead—then there were five.
Five ham and eggers asking more and more,
One wiped his spectacles—then there were four.
Four ham and eggers masked in mystery,
One lost his pipe o' dreams—then there were three.
Three ham and eggers wondering what to do,
One studied finance—then there were two.
Two ham and eggers waiting for the sun,
One fell exhausted—there there was one.
One ham and egger, all his dreaming done,
Made a pal of reason—then there was none.

ROYALTY RIDES IN BUICK CARS

Royalty has established a Buick vogue this year, with visiting monarchs and princes specifying this wodld-known make of car for their personal transportation while in America.

When their majesties, King George VI and Queen Elizabeth, arrived in Canada Monday, they were met by two specially built Buick convertible phaetons, which they will use wherever they require automobile transportation while on tour in this country.

The Crown Prince Olaf of Norway and Princess Martha have chosen a Buick Century convertible phaeton for their tour of the northwestern states.

And from London comes word from Landrum and Hartman, Ltd., Buick distributors in the British Isles, that the Duke of Windsor has placed his third repeat order for new Buick cars.

The two cars for use of the English King and Queen on their Canadian tour were completed last week in the Oshawa, Ontario plant of General Motors. The royal cars have custom built bodies, finished in a beautiful maroon, and are built on special 155 inch wheelbase chasis, powered by 143 horsepower Buick Series 90 valve-in-head engines.

NEVADA CITY WINS LAURELS AT ROARING CAMP

The Chamber of Commerce program of entertainment given at Roaring Camp last Thursday proved a most enjoyable one. Twenty two people on the program made the trip in a Nevada City-Grass Valley bus and the performers and speakers gave their performance on the Eagle Theatre in the camp before between 800 and 900 people. Encore after encore was called for, and more than filled the hour allotted to them. Speakers were Captain A. H. Willard, fish and game commission; Supervisor DeWitt Nelson, Tahoe national forest, and Sheriff Carl J. Tobiassen. There were solos, tap dancing and an Antler quartet.

H. F. Sofge, secretary Chamber of Commerce has received personal letters of thanks from A. S. Dudley, Sacramento Chamber of Commerce official, and others, for the splendid entertainment. After the show the troup were presented reserve tickets to the Roaring Camp show. The Nevada City district received much publicity by the local group's entertainment.

Ranger McCaslin was transferred here from the Sequoia national forest about nine years ago. His district comprised the North Bloomfield section and east taking in the Mt. Oro district. He has handled the affairs of his district in an excellent manner and claim holders in his section will regret his departure but wish him success in his new location.

LAW MAKERS FACE 4000 BILLS AND NO PAY

By RALPH H. TAYLOR

Rushing into the home stretch, with most of its business yet uncompleted and most of its legislation still on file in committee, the 1939 state legislature—far behind schedule, due to its prolonged budget battle and the never ending fight over relief appropriations—still must answer roll call on the vast majority of the 4000 bills and resolutions which were introduced during the first half of the session.

And in that situation, unless it is carefully guarded, lies danger for the farming industry and virtually every other earned income enterprise in the state of California.

During the hectic, latter days of a legislative session, when the bars are down and bills are voted out of committee without even the semblance of a hearing, California faces its most serious threat from unsound and visionary experimentation.

By even the most conservative standards, there are still 2500 bills in committee—and the legislative session has only two or three weeks before the final gavel call and its culmination.

This is the period, in other words, when quack measures slip by and spurious bills become law—due to the fact that both legislators and the legislative representatives are too occupied with their immediate needs to give attention to all the hundreds of measures still pending.

This is the period when shady operators slip over sleepers—and when visionary experimentalists befuddle the people. It is the most dangerous period in the whole legislative session.

California agriculture, which has much to gain and nothing to lose by intelligent lawmaking, rather than the hit-or-miss policies that ordinarily characterize the last days of a legislative session, needs to take account of stock during these final rush days and to keep close tab on developments in the committees of both houses.

A good rule for both conscientious legislators and hard pressed taxpayers during the closing days of the session, when there is a natural disposition to rush through legislation, is that every bill should be judged guilty until proven innocent. For most experienced legislative observers recognize that many of the bills which have been held back and not pressed until the eleventh hour are studded with jokers.

There are exceptions, of course. Some good bills are still on file—but the good bills can stand rigid examination. And it is safe to estimate from past experience that two-thirds of the measures which are deliberately delayed until the last hectic hours of the session are the type of bills that cannot stand the light of day and calm legislative deliberation.

California farmers, this year, have asked comparatively little of the lawmakers in the way of legislative enactments. But they have firmly demanded an end to extravagant and experimental legislation which would place new burdens on agriculture, business and industry.

And the legislature, thus far, has stood by its guns with splendid determination in killing off big spending proposals, new tax levies and the costly excursions into Utopia. The fact remains, however, that there are still more than $300,000,000 worth of special appropriations pending, either on the file or in committees.

WAR DISRUPTS JAPANESE TRADE THE WORLD OVER

"Japan's attempt to secure a new lifeline on the continent of Asia has led to violent dislocation of established trade channels and instead of a war boom there have been losses all along the line," declares Miriam S. Farley analyzing in Far Eastern Survey the effects of war in China upon Japan's foreign trade.

"A shortage of foreign exchange has forced Japan to husband her financial resources and to make her foreign purchases parsimoniously. She has therefore applied an increasingly rigid system of import controls, cutting purchases of non-essential commodities to the bone. Even the trade in war materials has felt the pinch of restriction.

"Export industries have suffered from rising costs and a shortage of raw materials, and this, combined with depression and boycotts abroad has reversed the prewar trend of Japan's export trade, turning a boom into a slump and checking, temporarily at least, the "menace" of Japanese competition in foreign markets," reports Miss Farley, Research Associate of the Institute of Pacific Relations. "The only direction in which exports have continued to expand is toward regions under Japanese military control—Manchuria and occupied China, but trade with those areas brings in no foreign exchange.

"The expansion of exports to occupied China, after an initial drop due to hostilities, may be easily explained," says Miss Farley, "by the influx of Japanese soldiers and civilians into these areas, the Japanese efforts at economic exploitation of the conquered territory, and the various measures by which Japan has sought to divert the trade of these regions toward herself, including the attempt to set up a new currency system linked with the yen.

"From the point of view of Japanese self sufficiency, imports from the yen bloc are more important than exports to it. Control of new territory is helpful in solving her financial difficulties only insofar as imports from these regions can be made to take the place of imports from other areas. And here Japan's success has been very limited. She is getting from China some cotton, wool, coal, iron and scrap iron, but not very much more than she was getting before the war and not enough to reduce materially her dependence on other countries, either for peacetime or for wartime industry. And, of course, from the short-term viewpoint the military costs of these acquisitions vastly exceed the gains.

"The effect of changes in Japan's trading position upon other countries has vared according to the nature of the commodities they export to Japan. Aside from the yen bloc those nations whose exports to Japan consist mainly of peace time materials, cotton, wool, etc.—have been badly hit. For example, imports from India declined by 62 per cent in 1938, from Australia 50 per cent and from South Africa 89 per cent. Countries which furnish Japan with both peace time and war time materials have suffered less. Thus the United States, Japan's principal supplier, has lost only 28 per cent, the severe decline in cotton being partly offset by increased shipments of oil, machinery, etc. Similarly, Canada with wood pulp and metals as well as lumber and wheat among her principal exports to Japan has lost only 13 per cent. Japan's European partners fared much better. Germany losing only 3 per cent and Italy gaining 32 per cent. Japan's imports from Italy are still inconsiderable but Germany now ranks third among Japan's suppliers.

"The difficulties heaped upon Japan's export trade have proved boons to her competitors. For instance the competitive position of American manufacturers has been strengthened in Latin America and the Philippines as well as in the home market; and there seems to have been some shift in American purchases towards Europe as well.

"For the sake of anticipated greater gains in China," the report concludes, "Japan has deliberately given up advantages in her older markets, both in competitive power and good will. It remains to be seen whether she can achieve, on the basis of autarchy in Eastern Asia, a more stable, prosperous and independent economy than that which she has sacrificed to this end."

NEW DEAL A LA OLSON HIT THIS STATE TOO LATE

By CLEM WHITAKER

There's one thing you can say about the members of the 1939 state legislature without fear of contradiction: The boys have a great capacity for saying "No"!

Like the belle of the town who had too many suitors, the lawmakers have played with every bill that came along but said "Yes" to none of them.

That, however, may be the fault of the bills rather than the lawmakers.

But the fact remains that no major legislation has yet received the approval of both houses—and the session is nearly ended.

More than that, more major bills will have been rejected—when the final roll-call is sounded—than in any other legislative session in all California's history.

It is a somewhat amazing record of negative action and red lights on the scoreboard. Yet, in this writer's opinion, it yields to ready analysis. The New Deal simply came to California too late—after the reaction had set in against it nationally. And the lawmakers, Democrats and Republicans alike, voted against it!

Politics of course, has more upsets than horse races—and there may be upsets, in a few instances, before the session has ended. But as it now appears, only a week or two before adjournment, none of Governor Olson's major proposals will receive approval. And the following either have been, or will be defeated:

(THEY VOTED "NO")

The Wages and Hours Act.

Compulsory Health Insurance.

State monopoly for Workmen's Compensation Insurance.

Garrison Revenue Bond Act, abolishing the two thirds vote requirement on revenue bonds.

Act to turn the Central Valley Water Project into a power socialization project, instead of water conservation program.

"Little Wagner Act", a state labor relations act patterned after national legislation.

Increase in state income tax.

Tax on losses proposed under the amendments to Bank and Corporation Franchise Tax.

Elimination of deduction for interest on debts from business taxes.

Increased liquor taxes.

State severance tax on oil and other natural resources.

Production for use experiment in relief program.

Abolishment of civil service in requirements covering key posts in state service.

Increases in relief and pension payments, et cetera.

On the positive side of the slate, the legislature heeded the only well-defined demand of the public at this session and voted consistently for economy, slashing the Olson budget by millions and killing most of the special appropriations submitted to it.

The people back home, however, apparently got what they wanted. For public sentiment, during recent months, has veered definitely away from the left and back toward middle-of-the-road policies.

CHAMBER ENVOYS TO MEET STATE HIGHWAY COM.

The Nevada City Chamber of Commerce now has 115 members having taken in three new ones at the last meeting. While in session a resolution was passed requesting a letter be sent Congressman Harry L. Englebright of this district, at Washington, D. C., urging the need of a new post office for Nevada City. It is stated the present office is crowded with the large quantity of mail coming and going each day.

The chamber's appointment with the state highway commission which was to have been held yesterday has been postponed until June 30. This will give more time to secure representatives from Downieville, Sierra City, Alleghany, North San Juan and other cities along the Downieville-Nevada City highway to attend the meeting in regard to improvements of the road of many dangerous curves.

Mrs. Henry Booth of Bronxville, N. Y., who has spent the past three weeks visiting her sister, Mrs. O. McCraney, in Nevada City left Wednesday for home.

The latest designs in show cases have been installed, new linoleum laid, the old shed roof that extended over the sidewalk has been torn away and the last word in awnings installed instead. ### LETTER TO THE EDITOR

Dear Editor of the Nugget: We have noticed that the copper lining of the courthouse roof has discolored part of the bright white wall under it. Since the courthouse is Nevada City's most impressive building, would it not be a good investment to buy a little whitewash and hire someone to paint over the dirty streaks.

Yours very truly,
SYLVIA BOTTS.
